that all artists employ. am DENNIS LEE BROWN, a professional artist specializing in fine original drawings in charcoal and graphite. The creation of fine art oil paintings inspired me. I have studied the elements, principles, methods, and techniques of visual art, and have practiced them for over fifty-five years. The masterpieces remain featured in online galleries.

My rich oil paintings celebrate vivid color, form, and texture. I work in acrylics, but primarily in oil on canvas, using a combination of thick impasto with painting knives, and delicate glazes to create depth, luminosity, and minute details My drawings and paintings are renowned for their vivid and diversified compositional creations. I am a painter, working in Acrylics and Oils, the natural world's majestic beauty motivates me to capture it on canvases. Whether in nature or imagination, the paintings are vivid and diversified.

The paintings celebrate color schemes, compositional form, and object texture and meditate on the connection between the atmosphere, light, shadow, and the subject matter.

Every object has a surface, and surfaces have a texture that forms in their production. Whether it is the extra smooth finished exterior of glass or the ridged roughness of concrete, everything's outward face has texture.

Texturing is what sets apart the plain exterior of an item from the detailed enhanced surface of a well-drawn subject.

It will be impossible to draw a surface's consistency by just using the regular markings of an artist's tool. It will require special drawing skills, methods, and techniques combined to complete the.

The Current Exhibit

“During the hibernating long winter days and the fringed darkness of night, I gathered my drawing tools and headed for the table to create something amazing. While dealing with nerve pain and skin peeling on my legs due to Lymphedema with continuous swelling coupled with sleeplessness, I relaxed by drawing still-life compositions.

These drawings portray the setups of objects inspired by items in my home organized on various display places, and with my imagination, I created still-life arrangements. This is an intense collection of twelve fine art drawings in charcoal and graphite using visual art, methods, principles, and techniques.”
